Description

Space for the label is often too small to display it entirely. A textarea could be a better option here, or at least wider width for the text field.

This is the on-page element yes? I don't know whether that should be there or not, since the dialog view will give more control, but was there to quickly enable the user to evaluate the survey without going through each option.

No, see attached screenshot. The size of the input text field (highlighted in the screenshot) for "label" is too small to show all of the text and cannot be resized, though it would be good to be able to resize it to see the whole text.
