Description

It would be nice to have an autocomplete of some sort for the institution name in the authorship form (when adding an author).

(Note that the most urgent case is the one in which you're simply adding lots of authors from the same institution to a single paper, so there may be other ways we could handle this besides autocomplete.)

The browser's built-in autocomplete would probably do OK except that it doesn't work, because the form fields all have unique names so the browser doesn't remember that you've already typed something in to a different one.
