In fact the search really is pretty useless a lot of the time. For an even worse example try searching at the top level, when not logged in, for "Klapuri" -- you will get two projects that contain the word in their summaries, but you won't find any of:

- the user of that name
- the only public project he is a member of, even though he's also a named author of the publication appearing on its front page
- the details of that publication that he's an author of
